National Labor Board Looming As the Most Potent NRA Force

WASHINGTON — Keep your eye on the NRA's National Board of Arbitration, or as it has just been renamed, the National Labor Board.

Set up as a result of the Pennsylvania coal strike, insiders are already envisioning it as the single most potent and important activity in the future operations of the Recovery Administration. For this reason:

When the shouting and tumult over the coding and re-employment labors are over, the biggest job confronting the NRA will be the enforcement and policing of its thousands of trade agreements. This is the job cut out for the Labor Board.

Dr. Leo Wolman, brilliant economist Chairman of the NRA Labor Advisory group, and second ranking member of the National Labor Board, is already working on this. He has formulated confidential plans for the establishment of a large statistical agency to blanket the whole of American industry. This body is to furnish information for the mediators of the Board, who will sit in judgment on all disputes.

Smile Comes Off

In Japan it is not considered good manners to smile, but Katsuji Debuchi, diminutive ambassador of Japan, has lived in the United States so long he usually wears a grin as broad as a Cheshire cat. But the other day at State Department, he looked sad.

"Last week," he explained, "Japan evacuated Chinese soil as far north as the Great Wall. That was very important. But there was not a line in the newspapers—not one line.

"If we had sent our troops south of the Great Wall into China you would have printed headlines."

Forgotten Man

A lot of job-seekers since March 4 have been holding themselves up as martyrs, forgotten by the New Deal they have helped to put in office. Some of them deserve sympathy, most of them don't.

There is one, however, who makes no claim to martyrdom, but as much as anyone, he deserves the title of Forgotten Man.

Three years ago the Federal Power Commission was sitting on dynamite. Millions of dollars had been "written up" on the books of the power companies on which the public eventually would take the loss. No one in the Commission dared bring this to light—except one man. He was Charles A. Russell, newly appointed solicitor.

Russell had the nerve to tip off certain senators, appeared before Congressional committees, waged a campaign against the power companies. But the latter stood supreme with the last Administration. Eventually Hoover fired him.

Roosevelt, with his eyes on the White House, saw his opportunity, fired Russell, used him for his power campaign. Russell served up until election. But now while lame ducks are appointed to the Federal Power Commission, Russell sits on the side-lines trying to eke out a living suing Andy Mellon for back taxes.

Iron Man

General Hugh Johnson is one "guy"—to use his own favorite colloquialism—who can take it. More than that, he violently objects to anyone making a fuss over his physical and mental stamina.

Recently, an out-of-town friend after watching Johnson's terrific high-pressure pace for several days thought he ought to say something about it.

"General," he admonished, "you want to watch yourself. You'll have a breakdown."

"Say," was the retort, "how do you guys get that way? You're the Nth person that's told me that. We've got a job to do and we are doing it. I'm not working any

HEAVY VEHICLE CRUSHES, KILLS YOUNG FARMER

William Miller, 28, Sole Support of Family, Taken Near New Holland

VILLAGE SHOCKED

Struggled to Feet After Being Run Over

The New Holland community was shocked Monday by the tragic death of William Miller, 28, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Miller, tenants on the Mrs. Lou Huston farm, who was killed when he fell from the seat of a manure spreader and was crushed under the heavy vehicle.

Funeral services will be held from St. Coleman's Catholic church, Washington C. H., at 9 a. m. Wednesday, with Rev. Fr. Fogerty officiating. Burial will be made in the Catholic cemetery there.

The sole support of a family of four, two of whom are invalids, young Miller had been working on the Huston farm nearly two years. The tragedy took place about 75 or 100 feet from the barn while Miller and Jacob Logenstein, a German farmhand, were engaged in hauling manure from the barnyard.

STONE IS CAUSE

The accident occurred at a shallow ditch in a field where a stone about the size of a gallon bucket was struck by the right front wheel as the spreader dropped into the ditch. The spreader apparently lurched violently, Logenstein, who was in the barn at the time, believes, unseating Miller and throwing him into the traces back of the horses. One wheel passed over his chest and also crushed the calf of his leg.

Apparently unaware of his serious injuries, Miller struggled to his feet and was helped into the spreader. Logenstein started to drive the spreader to the house but, when they reached the barnyard, Miller cried, "How near are we to the house." These were his last words and he died before Dr. Kahler of New Holland arrived to alleviate his distress.

CHEST CRUSHED

Examination disclosed that his chest had been crushed, ribs and collar bone were broken and his heart was injured, death apparently being due to the heart injury and internal hemorrhages.

The tragedy has stirred the sympathy of the New Holland vicinity because young Miller was known as a sincere and honest workman and the sole support of his family. His father and only brother are both invalids.

A native of Evansville, Indiana, Miller was born in 1905, a son of Joseph and Minnie Wigart Miller, and with his parents moved to Dayton several years ago. Mrs. Huston, a resident of Dayton, urged them to come to her farm a mile south of New Holland. They

FEAR THOUSANDS OF CHINESE DEAD

SHANGHAI, Aug. 15—Thousands of Chinese were reported drowned today and more than 150,000 driven from their homes as flood waters from the swollen Yellow river inundated a large section of Shantung, Hopei and Honan provinces.

With the floods passing south of a densely populated area, frantic efforts were pressed to prevent the stream from returning to its ancient river bed.

BERRIES GOOD

The Herald had a sample of Fireman Clint Strawser's raspberries today. These berries, according to Mr. Strawser, grow the whole year round.

Some of the branches off the berry bushes contained green berries, other berries that were just turning, and ripe berries. Anyway the ripe ones were mighty good.

FATAL BOAT UNDER WATER FIVE YEARS RETURNED TO HALL

A boat in which two south central Ohio men, Walter Reed and Charles Nungster, went to their deaths five years ago, has been found in the Scioto river. The pair drowned May 16, 1928, after borrowing the row-boat from Russell Hall. They had gone fishing.

It was thought the boat was blown to pieces by dynamite but after being at the bottom of the stream for five years it has been found at the Kellenberger bridge by two youths who returned it to its owner.

Mr. Hall, of Kingston, says it is in excellent condition despite the five years under the water.

33 WOULD BE CLERK

Commissioners To Meet Thursday To Announce Pickens' Successor.

With 33 written applications received, the Pickaway-co commissioners adjourned Monday afternoon until Thursday at 9 a. m. Shortly after the meeting has started it is expected the new clerk of courts to succeed Ferd M. Pickens, resigned, will be announced.

Some persons are of the opinion that the appointment has already been made and the commissioners are withholding their announcement until Thursday. All the 'county dads,' John W. Hay, Ralph E. May and Burr H. Rader, deny this is a fact declaring that no agreement of any kind has been reached.

The applications were opened and read Monday afternoon shortly after Mr. Pickens' resignation was read but no action was taken and no comment made on any of the applications or applicants.

Mr. Pickens has been appointed chief counsel for the Columbus branch of the federal Homeowners' Loan corporation. His term will not end until Jan. 1, 1935. He began his second term last January 1.

Allen 'Jack' Atwill, of the state examiner's office, was to check Mr. Pickens out of the office Tuesday. Mrs. Ruth Pickens, wife of the clerk and his deputy, will remain in the office until a new clerk has been named and qualified.

FOOD MEN PLEDGE AID TO NRA PLAN

Will Adjust Prices Agreeable To All; Separate Meetings Planned.

Pledging cooperation to President Roosevelt's NRA program, 15 restauranteurs and confectioners met at the Boggs Hotel Monday evening and agreed to adjust prices to conform with present conditions, and which will be both satisfactory to the retailer and consumer.

The same group will meet again next Monday at the Boggs at 8 p. m. Separate group meetings were also announced for this week. All confectioners are urged to attend a meeting at George Roof's restaurant at 3 p. m. Wednesday and food dispensers will hold a meeting at 8 p. m. Thursday at Hanley's Tea Room, E. Main-st.

Variations in prices throughout Circleville were discussed at Monday's meeting and those present agreed to stabilize prices that will be agreeable to the seller and buyer. In the past there have been a dozen prices charged for the same product, which indicates that something is wrong, one person who attended the meeting pointed out.

Opening and closing hours of restaurants and confectioneries are not expected to be affected by the NRA code.

FINLEY HELD FOR CUTTING

Hocking-Co Youth Captured Early Tuesday While Enroute To His Home.

Paul Finley, of near Adelphi, was being held in the county jail today after his capture early Tuesday by Sheriff Charles Radcliff and Deputy Sheriff Bryan Custer. Finley, charged with cutting Floyd "Tafe" Redman, 24, was caught on Route 56 while enroute to his home in the automobile of a local man whom he had induced to haul him.

The sheriff's office had received a tip concerning Finley's whereabouts and hurrying to the Adelphi pike they caught up with the automobile in which Finley was riding. The name of the man taking him home was not disclosed because he has no connection in the case, officers said.

Finley will be charged with cutting with intent to wound. Redman, feared critically hurt, was taken to his home from Berger hospital Tuesday. He is very weak having lost a great amount of blood.

Finley was trapped Sunday night after the fracas at Washington-and Corwin-sts but escaped. He walked north on the Chesapeake & Ohio railroad tracks past Bell's siding to Gray's station. He hid in a woods all day Monday and came to Circleville Monday night.

His "pal" Hobart Ross is held in jail as a witness to the cutting.

Ohio drys hurled themselves with full force into the battle against repeal of the 18th amendment today with the announcement of an impressive list of educators, clergymen, attorneys and others who will be candidates at the Nov. 7 election for delegates-at-large to Ohio's repeal convention.

Filled with "big names" the list is headed by Mrs. Frank B. Willis of Delaware, widow of the late U. S. senator from Ohio, who was one of prohibition's most vigorous campaigners.

JOHNSON NAMED

J. W. Johnson, N. Court-st, retired local publisher and one of prohibition's most ardent supporters, has been named on the list. The name "John C. Fuhr, Williamsport merchant" was also included in the list but no such person is known.

Harry P. Carruth, of Chillicothe, son-in-law of Mrs. J. W. Adkins, is a repeal party candidate.

Dr. Howard Hyde Russell of Westerville, founder of the Anti-Saloon League; Dr. Edmund D. Soper, president of Ohio Wesleyan university at Delaware; Dr. Robert N. Montgomery, president of Muskingum college at New Concord; Bishop H. Lester Smith of the Methodist Episcopal church, Cincinnati, and Bishop A. R. Clippinger of the United Brethren church of Dayton, are other leaders on the slate of 52 candidates.

Chosen by the United Forces of Prohibition, the dry candidates will plunge at once into the fight against the wet ticket, which was announced a month ago.

Nominating petitions, requiring 5,000 signatures for each candidate, will be circulated immediately. Obtaining sufficient signatures, according to S. P. McNaught, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, "will be a small task."

CAMPAIGN PLANNED

"An agressive campaign to elect these 52 will be waged," the combined dry organizations said in a

The jury of twelve married men received the case after a charge of one hour and twenty four minutes by Judge Fosdick with the doors of the courtroom locked.

Jessie, who had shown some nervousness facing a crowd of five thousand outside the courthouse, flashed her magnetic smile inside the courtroom as she began the day which may mean life or death to her.

Departing from his custom, Judge Fosdick delivered his charge while seated and permitted the jury to remain seated.

ARRESTS CLEAR URSCHEL CASE AND DEPOT MASSACRE OF FIVE

Harvey Bailey, Notorious Killer, and Ten Other Persons Captured In Series of Raids By Federal Men; Part of Oil Man's Marked Money Found in Texas Farmhouse.

DALLAS, Tex., Aug. 15—Swift prosecution was promised today for Harvey J. Bailey, notorious desperado, and ten other persons seized by federal operatives for the kidnaping of Charles F. Urschel, millionaire Oklahoma oil man, and the massacre of five men at Kansas City.

Department of justice agents announced that Urschel's kidnapers will in all probability be taken to Oklahoma City for federal trial for the interstate abduction. They will be given speedy trials, it was announced.

Raids in three cities, St. Paul, Denver and Paradise, Tex., brought capture of the eleven suspects in the two major crimes of the year as the federal government fired its opening gun in President Roosevelt's campaign against the underworld.

TRAPPED IN HOUSE

Bailey, a notorious bank robber and killer who fled the Kansas state penitentiary last Memorial day, was trapped as he slept in a farmhouse near Paradise, Tex. Surrounding him was a small arsenal of guns and ammunition.

Urschel's fingerprints were found in the house, and the oil operator identified the farmhouse as the place where he was held until $200,000 ransom was paid.

Some of the marked money paid for Urschel's release was found in Bailey's possession, federal operatives announced. The exconvict has been identified as the man who wielded a machine gun that killed Frank Nash, convict, and four officers at the Kansas City union station June 17.

BATES IDENTIFIED

Department of justice agents in Denver arrested Albert L. Bates, 39, ex-convict, as a suspect in the Urschel kidnaping. Bates fled the Van Bureau county jail at Paw Paw, Michfl, on Christmas day, 1931.

Bates and Bailey were said to have participated in the St. Valentine's day massacre of seven gangsters in Chicago in 1929.

At St. Paul federal agents were holding four more men in connection with the Urschel kidnaping, charged with passing part of the

COLUMBUS' SEWAGE PLAN IS PREPARED

Estimated Cost $1,300,000; State Board May Act On Plans Sept. 1.

Circleville and Pickaway-co residents, who have been exposed to the filthy odors emanating from the Scioto river, were assured of some relief, Tuesday, when plans for a sewage disposal plant to be erected at Columbus at an estimated cost of $1,300,000 were submitted to the state health department.

The Ohio supreme court ruled sometime ago that the city of Columbus must build a sewage plant by Aug. 20.

Dr. H. G. Southard, director of health, indicated that Columbus' plans might not be acted on soon as the department was swamped with plant proposals from 100 other Ohio cities.

F. H. Waring, chief engineer for the health department, said that Columbus plans probably could be given the necessary examination for recommendation to the public health council when it meets Sept. 1.

MRS. HENNESS GETS HEALTH OFFICE JOB

Mrs. Harriett B. Henness, Watt-st, was selected Monday by the Pickaway-co board of health as secretary and stenographer for Dr. C. C. Beale, county health physician, to succeed Mrs. Luther Bower, N. Court-st, who has submitted her resignation, effective Sept. 1.

MAXIN PARDONED

COLUMBUS, Aug. 15—The state parole board reported to Governor George White today that it "has no objection" to the granting of a pardon to Paul Maxin, 25-year-old escaped inmate of the Mansfield reformatory who "made good" as an advertising executive in Chicago on his "stolen freedom."

The attitude of the parole board was presented to the governor by Charles Sharpe, a member of the board, who interviewed Maxin yesterday at the Mansfield reformatory where he was returned recently to resume serving a one-to-15 year sentence for the theft of class pins from the Coitsville high school.

F. D. R. MEETS NRA LEADERS

Conference at White House Today To Go Over Nation Developments.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.— President Roosevelt today planned a thorough inspection of the great machine he built to manufacture prosperity.

The weekly meeting of his executive council, scheduled for 2 p. m., furnished the opportunity for the survey. At that time all the heads of the many parts of the big machine will gather at Mr. Roosevelt's desk and spread before him the inside picture of a goverment at work.

A series of conferences he held while vacationing at his home in Hyde Park, N. Y., and dozens of meetings held here since he returned, kept the president in close touch with his recovery organization. But not since the closing days of July has he had a chance to assemble all the parts and look at its accomplishments as a whole.

NRA CHIEF GAINING WEIGHT ON 6 HOURS SLEEP EACH NIGHT

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15—Brig. Gen. Hugh S. Johnson runs the National Recovery Administration on an average of not over six hours sleep nightly. He has gained weight doing it.

And the generalissimo of the vast economic effort is not as hard boiled as most people believe.

The statements are made on good authority, for they come from Mrs. Hugh S. Johnson, the charming wife and co-worker of the NRA chieftain.

Mulrooney Advocates Whipping Post For Kidnapers, Other Major Criminals

NEW YORK, Aug. 15—Kidnapers and others convicted of major crimes should be publicly whipped every six months over a period of 20 years. Former New York Police Commissioner Edward P. Mulrooney said Monday before the first public forum on racketeering held by the senatorial sub-committee of which U. S. Senator Royal S. Copeland is chairman.

"If kidnapers, after conviction, should be sentenced to 20 years in prison, plus 15 lashes every six months, this punishment should have a salutary effect on the crime situation," said Mulrooney, now head of the New York state beer control commission, and one of the leading police authorities in the world.

"MAY SOUND BRUTAL"

"This lashing system may sound brutal but the kidnaper, and other major criminals, are just as brutal to their victims," continued Mulrooney.

"Canada, England, and the state of Delaware are not above administering lashes. You have to humiliate the modern gangster."

He pictured the average American criminal of today as a young man who made crime a career, was willing to kill, had plenty of money with which to work and whose only goal was "the dollar."

"He thinks he can beat the law with the aid of money," Mulrooney declared.

Mulrooney also advocated universal fingerprinting of school children.

"During the hunt for the Lindbergh baby kidnapers, thousands of mothers wrote me asking to fingerprint their children for protection," said Mulrooney.

He spoke up for a central fingerprinting bureau.

Oil Teams Meet In Crucial Game

A recreation ball tilt which will have quite a bearing on the first half championship of the league will be played this evening between the Sinclairs Oils, in second place, and the Circleville Oils, in fourth position.

The Sinclairs need the victory to be tied with the Walisa Sluggers for first place; a defeat will give the Walisa team the first half leadership.

The contest is to start at 6:15 with George Vlerebome tossing them for the Sinclairs and Carl Purcell or Paul Wallace for the Circleville Oils.

One of the most interesting games of the season was played Monday evening between the Fats and the Leans with the latter outfit winning, 16-15.

More good honest-to-goodness fun was gleaned from this fray than from any played this season. Flip-flops, terrible errors, exciting base-running and Ralph Mack with his pipe were the features of the game.

The Leans, defeated until they came to bat in the last inning, put on a rally which scored six runs to clinch the victory.

The lineups follow:

Leans: Zeimer, p; Rooney, 2b; Mack, cf; Kelzach, c; Hegele, 1b; T. Miller, rf; J. Denman, ss; Palm, cf- Hanlev, 3b; Scott, lf.

Fats: M. Friedman, 1b; F. Davis, p; T. White, 2b; E. Hoffman, lf; E. Stout, 3b; R. Lane, cf; Nickerson, ss; Herdman, rf; Shellhamer, lf; Eichinger, c.

FOXX BREAKS LEAGUE MARK

Philadelphia Slugger Drives Nine Runs Over Plate At Cleveland.

NEW YORK, Aug. 15—"The glory dies not and the grief is past."

Jimmy Foxx may not keep a diary and he may not care for little jottings from the poets, but if he happens to be that kind of a guy, he undoubtedly trotted out the little red book today and penned the above.

For the man they say Connie Mack might, for proper inducement, sell down the river, attached himself more closely than ever to Philadelphia fans with a remarkable performance yesterday against the Cleveland Indians. He connected for a homer, triple, double and single to drive in nine runs, constituting a new American league record.

MAKES BETTER BUY

Of course, Mr. Mack may take the slant that the feat of his promising first baseman makes him all the more attractive as a buy, but probably in the end sanity will prevail and Mr. Mack will let his great hitter hang around a while longer, no matter how badly some other club might need him.

Jimmy's outburst topped the old American league mark made by Topsy Hartzell of the New York Yankees in 1911 and since equalled by Harry Heilman, Lou Gehrig, Earl Averill and Carl Reynolds. Foxx is still three short of the major league record established by Jim Bottomley of the St. Louis Cards in 1924.

Here's the record in Foxx's record-smashing performance:

First inning—Tripled with Cramer and Cochrane on base.

Second inning—Hit homer with Williams, MaHaffey and Cramer scoring ahead of him.

Fourth inning — Doubled with Cochrane on second.

Sixth inning—Singled to center to score McNair and Cramer.

The homer was No. 35 for Jimmy, placing him nine ring-around-the-rosies ahead of the esteemed Babe Ruth, who is touching bottom right now in one of the worst slumps of his career.

Drys chose their candidates from every walk of life.

Walter F. Kirk of Port Clinton, master of the Ohio State Grange, was selected from agriculture, but numerous other farmers also were chosen.

Two stand-pat drys from the Ohio legislature—the veteran W. D. Ditmars of Holmsville, Democratic representative from Holmesco, and Mrs. Della M. Slagel of Youngstown, Republican representative from Mahoning county—were assigned to leading places on the ticket.

Under provisions of the Mosier-Lawrence law providing for a repeal convention, the candidates elected as delegates at the Nov. 7 election will meet in convention on Dec. 5 and go through the formality of voting to reject or ratify the 21st amendment, repealing the 18th amendment.

The result will be made known in advance when the votes are counted Nov. 7 and it is determined whether a wet or dry delegation has been elected.

Announcing of a ticket by the drys marks their surrender in their fight to prevent a vote on Nov. 7. No further attempt to force a referendum on the Mosier-Lawrence law is to be made.

MULROONEY

During Mulrooney's testimony, Professor Raymond Moley, assistant secretary of state, in charge of President Roosevelt's special survey into crime, entered the hearing chamber in the bar association building.

Joseph B. Keenan, special assistant to the attorney general, spoke of the efficiency of the federal identification bureau and its fingerprinting system which had been of great aid to local and state authorities.

He referred to the ease with which gangsters could obtain machine guns and expressed the hope that when national legislation was considered to control the traffic in machine guns "no powerful lobby—nor interest of sportsmen will have sufficient weight to defeat passage."

COLUMBUS DEALER SUICIDES IN LEAP FROM CITY HOSPITAL

COLUMBUS, Aug. 15.—Leaving behind a note declaring he "couldn't stand the pain any longer," James A. Beery, prominent Columbus real estate dealer, today leaped from a fifth floor window of Grant Hospital here, according to hospital attaches. He was fatally injured.

Beery had been a patient in the hospital since last Wednesday when he underwent a minor operation.

Beery, who was treasurer of the Hansberger, Marion & Beery Co., and president of the Franklin Mortgage Co., was a native of Fairfield-co. He had been a resident of Columbus for the last 40 years.

ransom money paid for the millionaire's release. They are Sam J. Kronick, Charles Wolk, Sam Kozberg and William Nelson.

Four of the five occupants seized in the Texas farmhouse with Bailey were being held in the Dallas-co jail here with the escaped convict. They are: R. G. Shannon, said to be the owner of the place; his wife, Ora, their son, Armon and his wife, Oleta.

Urschel was kidnaped from his Oklahoma City home July 22 and was released in Oklahoma nine days later.

The arrests revealed that the millionaire had cooperated closely with federal investigators. The hum of an airplane that passed above his place of captivity at 9:15 a. m. and at 5:45 p. m. each day directed investigators to the secluded farmhouse.

Urschel informed federal agents that on one Sunday morning the plane did not pass, and from department of commerce weather data and American Airway pilots reports determined that the plane had veered off its course near Dallas to escape threatening weather.

Armed with this data, investigators circled an area near Paradise and located the farmhouse.

When Bailey led eleven convicts from the Lansing, Kas., prison Memorial day he was serving ten to fifty years for bank robbery. He was also wanted for the $2,000,000 holdup of the Lincoln, Neb., bank and Trust company Sept. 17, 1930. He is also wanted for the murder of J. Earl Smith, Tulsa attorney.

BOHNERT IS READY FOR TAX SESSION

Wants Beer Tax Cut; Session Should Have Been Later, He Declares.

Nathan C. Bohnert, Monroe-twp, Pickaway-co's representative to the General Assembly, was a visitor in Circleville Tuesday, preparing to leave for Columbus, where he will attend the opening session of Gov. George White's special session of the legislature Wednesday.

"I don't know what he plans to do," Mr. Bohnert replied when asked if he knew anything about the governor's plans. Mr. Bohnert was also queried about the governor's proposal to slash one-cent from the two-cent cap tax on beer. "That tax should never have been put on beer. I voted against it. It's a well known fact that the more you tax, the more trouble you'll have with the booze traffic," he said.

The representative said he thought the governor should have waited until December to recall the legislature. "Then he'll know something about the December tax collection and he may be able to advance plans for taking care of state aid schools," he asserted.

Mr. Bohnert is slowly recovering from a severe illness. He still shows sign of the sickness but says he's getting better.

Threats To Finish Job Heard As One Negro Escapes Mob's Violence.

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Aug. 15.—Threats to "finish the job" today brought mobilization of a company of the Alabama National Guard to protect the life of Elmore Clark, 28-year-old negro, who with two other negro youths accused of the attack-murder of an 18-year-old white girl, was seized from sheriff's deputies early Sunday by a masked mob.

Clark's two companions, Dan Pippin, 18, and A. T. Hardin, 16, were slain by the lynch mob shortly after the sheriff's automobile was waylaid on a lonely stretch of the Tuscaloosa-Birmingham highway as the negroes were being spirited to the Jefferson-co (Birmingham) jail for safekeeping.

Clark, though badly wounded, escaped with his life in the fusillade of bullets that riddled the bodies of the two others with more than two dozen leaden slugs.

PLAN STAG PARTY

There will be a stag party at the Pickaway Country club Wednesday evening.

Boy Farmers Cheer F. D. R.

President Roosevelt and his mother, Mrs. Sarah Delano Roosevelt, are given a rousing reception by the boy farmers on the Children's Aid Society farm at New Hamburg, N. Y. The boys, all between the ages of 16 and 20, are mostly from crowded city tenements. They are being trained at the 300-acre farm as part of the President's "back-to-the-farm" movement.

LEGLESS SWIMMER ABANDONS EFFORT TO CROSS CHANNEL

DOVER, Eng., Aug. 15—Charles Ziebelman, legless Chicago swimmer, gave up his attempt to swim the English channel today.

He entered the water at 7:30 p. m. yesterday, only to encounter mist that hung over the channel throughout the night.

It was impossible to estimate the distance he covered when he abandoned the attempt, but an hour and a half after entering the water he had covered five and a half miles.

He was accompanied by assistants in rowboats when he set out to reach the French coast near Calais.

WOODIN TO WORK AFTER LABOR DAY

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15. — After an absence of many weeks because of illness, Secretary of the Treasury Woodin will return to Washington to reassume his duties shortly after Labor Day.

Treasury officials said today that Woodin's health has improved and that he will be ready for the hard grind in the four months preceding the winter session of congress.

TWO NEGROES DIE

COLUMBUS, Aug. 15.—Hopes, prayers and even the intervention of a white woman today had gone for naught in the cases of James and Joseph Murphy, negro brothers.

Protesting their innocence to the last, the two brothers were put to death in the electric chair at Ohio Penitentiary shortly after 8:30 o'clock last night for the murder of Harry Friedhoff, Silverton bank cashier, during a bank holdup.

You'd like the ROBINSONS

THEY'RE the kind of people it's nice to have as neighbors. They always seem to have such a good time together. Their home isn't large, but it's furnished in excellent taste; everything fits perfectly, as though it had been made especially for the very space it occupies.

And their dinners are charming. Not expensive, but different . . . new and interesting dishes that other people haven't heard of yet. Mrs. Robinson dresses beautifully, too. Her clothes have that air of coming straight from Paris, yet she doesn't spend much on them.

If you should ask her how it is she manages things so well, Mrs. Robinson would smile and say, "It's really very simple. We budget our income. That tells us how much money we have to spend. And we read the advertisements. That tells us how to spend our money wisely."

Confidence and Conceit

EFFICIENCY experts and practitioners in the art of supersalesmanship lay stress on what is casually termed "self-confidence." To sell one's product or to sell one's self, they say, one must have confidence in one's products or in one's ability and talents.

But there is a wide difference between legitimate self-confidence and stupid conceit. The latter quality, unfortunately, is to be found in many persons, in many different walks of life, and when displayed to any noticeable degree at all, is insufferable. Beautiful women, that is, those who are naturally beautiful and do not have to depend upon artificial aids, often take on the air of having been altogether responsible for their pulchritude. They forget that fate just as easily might have made them hideous. And the same thing is true of the handsome youth who, realizing his handsomeness, affects the role of having been altogether responsible for his good looks. Fate might just as easily have marred him, too.

Conceit, however, takes its worst form in those human frames which lay claim to more than the average brains or intellectuality, and this applies particularly to professional walks of life. Even in the matter of brains or intellect, whatever gods there be obviously are as capable of producing morons as they are of producing intellectual giants. The most beautiful woman, of course, is that woman who, although quite lovely, seems unconscious of it. And the wisest man is he who realizes that mortal wisdom, and especially his own endowment of it, has many limitations.

Avoiding the Extreme

THE extremist is never with a large following. There are two extremes in all things, but the multitude will always be found half way between the two. In such a humble occupation as housekeeping there are the two extremes and the happy medium. The housekeeper who is excessively tidy and immaculate fails as completely in her purpose as does the slovenly housewife.

The good housekeeper, who is not without honor even in her own country, is the one who follows the middle course between the slattern and the eternal dust-chaser.

Everyone knows that an untidy house is the cause of all sorts of wrong living on the part of the husbands, wives and children. And yet household tidiness can be carried to excess. A home that is one thing, but a home where everything is so prim that the members of the family and callers feel ill at ease is quite another thing.

It often happens that women who strive to be good housekeepers forget about the comfort and contentment of the family. Collecting all sorts of odds and ends that seem valueless to mother or father is a trait of all normal children. The bits of colored glass, or the gay magazine clippings, and the broken top that an over-neat mother may destroy may cause many unhappy pangs to the child. Likewise father's old pipe, or the disreputable pair of fishing shoe have a value to him far above mere household tidiness.

After all, the only purpose of household tidiness is to make the home comfortable to the family and presentable to visitors.

"STOLEN LOVE"

by HAZEL LIVINGSTON

COPYRIGHT BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

Joan Hastings, seventeen and beautiful, lives a secluded life with her two old maiden aunts in a run-down house. Aunt Evvie reveals to her how her mother had won her father away from Aunt Babe but Joan refuses to believe anything but good of her mother. She falls in love with Bill Martin, a garage worker, who comes once a week to care for Aunt Evvie's car. Meanwhile, the aunts plan to send Joan away to school.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER 6

They were both so young and inexperienced. Even tall Bill who lounged around the docks, and liked a fight now and then.

He didn't intend to do odd jobs all his life. He told her about his dreams, shyly at first, more confidently and fluently later.

"You see, I had to be out of school so much. Dad died when I was a little shaver. I had to work some, so I always seemed kind of overgrown when I got back to school. Didn't fit in with the rest, somehow. So I was glad when I got through. You might not think it's much to work in a garage."

"Oh I do—I do—"

"Well, your aunts wouldn't," he amended reasonably. "But I'm learning the business. After I learn it—"

She drew a little nearer, her lovely sensitive face all aglow. "What then—what are you going to do then—"

He didn't know, and he hated himself for not knowing. "Oh—quit, I guess. I'm kind of no account, I guess—"

"Oh no—no you aren't."

"You don't understand," he burst awkwardly. "You—oh well—you're different. We're so doggone poor. Ma and I—and my sister and her husband live with us, and the three kids—"

"Oh, but we're poor too!" Joan's eyes were shining. She was glad she was poor, too, so that Bill wouldn't mind being poor alone. "You don't know how poor we are. Why our roof leaks terribly. The whole third story is awful in winter. Mrs. Heeley and I have to put wash basins, and buckets and everything out to catch the rain, and the wall paper is all peeling off—"

He looked up at the big house, with its yellow turrets reaching affluently skyward, and shook his head. "That's not the same. It's a different kind of poor we are. You don't know—"

"Yes, I do. I know where you live. In the little white house down in the hollow—"

"Near the fishery," he finished defiantly, "and the old saloons—"

"I don't care. I'd as soon live there as our house!"

"Johnnie—you wouldn't!"

It was the first time he had called her that. Her very finger tips were tingling. "Yes, I would!"

And then the gate creaked, there was a scuffling along the gravel walk—Aunt Evvie and Aunt Babe coming home. There was barely time for Joan to scamper up the back stairs before Evvie's latchkey turned in the front door. It was always that way. Somebody was always interrupting them.

Once he held her hands tight. "Suppose I won't let you go?" he teased.

She smiled back at him, but her clear dark eyes were serious. "Sometimes I wish you wouldn't," she said.

She was always saying things like that, things that thrilled and scared him. She wasn't like other girls. There was no coquetry in her. She who had no love but Bill's, couldn't be niggardly with hers. She wanted him to know she loved him.

There was no doubt about it in her mind now. There would never be anyone but Bill. Bill was hope, and love and life, everything she had dreamed of, everything she needed to live for.

In his saner moments, counting out the money for the butcher bill, or putting up a new clothes line for his mother, he knew that it was all wrong.

"Gosh, I must have been crazy. A Van Fleet—and me. Ye gods! She's just a fool kind—stringing me along I guess. I guess she wouldn't ever care for a fellow like me."

And then he couldn't rest until he had seen her again. "Just this once," he would think. "I'll see her this once, and I'll kind of let her know that it's no good, and we'd better cut it out before her aunts find out and have a fit."

He tried to tell her late one afternoon when they walked up the hill road above the sea. There was a sheltered place in some stunted bushes, just off the road. They sat there in the sunshine, with the glittering bay spread out before them, and watched the fat white ferryboat churning into the slip.

"I suppose I'll be clearing out of here before very long—going over to the city," he said guardedly.

She nodded. "I s'pose so."

"No opportunities much here—"

"No—"

A feeling of utter desolation swept over him. "You don't care!" he cried sharply.

"Oh—but I didn't think—I didn't think you meant—that you wouldn't come back—" The words fairly tumbled out of her aching throat. "Bill—you didn't mean, not to see me any more?"

He saw her in a sort of golden mist, the sun was so bright, and his eyes, somehow were blurred. No use pretending he didn't love her—he did—more than anything in the world, more than he had thought he could ever love anyone. And he was going to give her up, because she was a Van Fleet, and he was just no account.

He turned his head away, murmured something about "Best thing that could happen for you—"

Swiftly her arms twined round him. She was clinging to him with all her strength. "No—no—" she panted. "It wouldn't be. And besides, I won't give you up—ever!" Her lips, incredibly soft and red, met his. "I won't give you up—ever!"

With Joan's kisses sweet on his lips, and her honest eyes, clear and green as the sea, promising, Bill made one last lame effort.

"Gee—it would be years before I could—marry anybody. I'd have to clear out for a while first and get a job. I haven't even got the price of a brass ring!"

She kissed him again. "I wouldn't care!"

Slowly they got to their feet. The sun was setting. "I'll have to hurry!" she said. The looked at each other and laughed delightedly. They were hardly moving, they were walking so slowly, but the Van Fleet hedge seemed running to meet them—they were there so soon.

"Good-bye—dear!"

"Good-bye!" The word was a caress.

Joan floated into the kitchen. She was walking on air. Mrs. Heeley was mashing potatoes, and her head was tied up in a red plaid shawl. A sign that her temper and neuralgia were at their worst, but Joan was blind to bad signs.

She began to cut bread in a beatific daze.

"I said," Heeley was shouting now. Joan had to hear her. "I said your Aunt Evvie was waitin' in the library to see you. She got a letter about you today, and if I was you, I wouldn't keep her waiting."

"Did you want me, Aunt Evvie?" Joan was still walking on air. Not even the thought of Aunt Evvie's possible displeasure could penetrate the warm dream in which she moved.

"Bill loves me—Bill loves me—" It was a kind of litany repeating itself in her heart.

But Aunt Evvie wasn't displeased. Now that she was going to be rid of Joan once and forever, she felt a glow of something almost like affection for her. "After all, she's been a good girl, considering how pretty she is. It might have been worse," she thought. And aloud she said, "Yes—I just heard from Cousin Belle. She's sent the money for you to go to Philadelphia."

"Philadelphia! Way back East—why Aunt Evvie!"

Joan couldn't believe it. Sausalito, with occasional visits to San Rafael, and still rarer trips to San Francisco—had been her world. To think of going to Philadelphia!

"Boarding school," Aunt Evvie continued. "Cousin Belle conducts a very fine school for young ladies. You'll be expected to help any way you can—"

Boarding school! Magic words. All the stories of fudge parties, midnight suppers, and boarding school adventures passed in quick succession through Joan's throbbing head. To be able to spend the waiting time—the time when Bill would be away—that way. An engaged girl in a boarding school. Getting letters. Maybe Bill would go East too. He said he'd have to go some place—he couldn't stay in Sausalito. Maybe he'd be nearer—and they could see each othe often—

"Oh, Aunt Evvie!" she cried—and flung eager arms around her—"Oh, I can't tell you—it's the most wonderful day in my whole life!"

"Well, don't be foolish about it," Evvie said, not unkindly. She disentangled Joan's loving hands and straightened her stiff white shirtwaist automatically. It occurred to her for the first time that it would be very quiet in the old house without the girl. Too quiet. Heeley was a half-wit, and Babe was a simpleton. Joan at least had been worthy of battle.

"She can't go East in that outfit!" Babe put in sharply. "She's got to have clothes. You're so smart thinking of everything, Evelyn Van Fleet—I suppose you didn't think of that? I knew it would cost more than just carfare, and where're you going to get the money?"

"Oh, this is all right—I'll press it." Joan who was already climbing down a fire-escape in Cousin Belle's School for Young Ladies, meeting Bill—a miraculously tailored and glittering Bill, with love in his eyes, and money in his pockets, couldn't be bothered with details. Just let her get there. Everything would come out right.

"I'm going to take her over to the city tomorrow, and get her some things," Evvie said grandly. "Belle sent fifty dollars over the price of the ticket. Ten dollars will be oceans for meals on the train—that leave forty for clothes."

Forty dollars for clothes. Forty dollars! It would buy everything—everything she'd ever wanted. And only the other day she had been crying because she couldn't have two dollars for a blue cotton crepe. But that was before Bill came. All the good fortune was mixed up with Bill. The prince came, and directly the fairy godmother waved her wand and sent railroad tickets, and new dresses. . . .

It was too wonderful. Too much to happen in one day. Blindly groping for her handkerchief, with a little choked cry she fled to the friendly quiet of her room.

Pulaski's Choice

By IRVIN S. COBB

IT so befell in the months preceding our entry into the Great War that in a suburb of Chicago a preparedness league was organized. Swept away by patriotic love for his adopted country a youth named Pulaski joined it. Now, military drill was a part of the duties of a member, and young Pulaski did not take with any great amount of enthusiasm to this feature.

One evening the commander of his squad sought to liven him.

"Buck up Herman!" he said. "You learn how to be a soldier, and some of these days you may go back to the old country—to Poland—and be a field marshal."

"I think," said Herman, "I'd rather stay here and be Marshall Field."

Will Rogers Picks A Story For This Spot

By WILL ROGERS

THERE was some oil folks in a Kansas town that invited a famous singer out to their house over

Sunday. They had all heard her sing at the opera house Saturday night, and they wanted to make a hit with her.

After lunch Mrs. Oil was talking to the singer in the conservatory, and they talked about this and that in a singing way, but the singer found out the lady didn't know so very much about music.

"You know, Mrs. Oil," she said once, "I have a very strange repertoire."

"Yes, I noticed it Saturday night," says Mrs. Oil, "but I think you could wear a different kind of a dress so nobody would ever notice it."

AT THE GRAND

"After The Ball," the Gaumont picture that is being presented by Rox Film, reveals the colossal task of creating nine elaborate settings for one production. This film, coming to the Grand Theatre on Wednesday, is an excellent example of the care taken by a major movie studio to achieve authenticity.

Among others there is the gigantic ballroom, the locale of a brilliant diplomatic function. With its 400 dancers and thousands of lights, this setting required the utmost in modern cinematic art. The scene was photographed from twenty-three different angles, necessitating as many complete setups of cameras and revisions of equipment.

AT THE CLIFTONA

What the poor bootlegger will do, once prohibition is repealed, is one of the amusing problems dealt with by Alison Skipworth, of "Madame Racketeer" fame in her latest comedy, "A Lady's Profession," currently showing at the Cliftona Theatre. Miss Skipworth is co-featured in the film with Roland Young and Sari Maritza.

The plight of the bootlegger who fears he'll have to join the breadline when prohibition ends is dealt with humorously in the picture. A couple of middle-aged titled Britons, with no money, attempt to get hold of the latter by coming to America and opening a speakeasy. Their difficulties in speakeasy operation are not with the law, but with the bootleggers who are trying to get rid of the million-dollar stock before "Congress muscles in on our racket."

Did you ever stop to think

by EDSON R. WAITE
Shawnee Okla

J. W. Hanson, Editor of the New Smyrna, (Florida,) Daily News, says:

"The trouble with the spasmodic advertiser is that he believes that it reaches farther than it actually does. He often has the notion that three or four good ads a year are going to stamp upon the mind of every buyer the fact that he has goods of good quality and at right prices in a way that the impression will never wear off.

"But human minds are not that way; they are easy to divert from one thing to another by an honest and attractive appeal through the medium of newspaper advertising, unless the impression has been made over a period of many years.

"Advertising affects the mind of a buyer in much the same manner as a stream of water on a rock. If the rock had the sense to know, it would realize it the first time a drop of water fell upon it, but it takes millions of years to wear an impression in the rock that will last.

"Spasmodic advertising only moistens the mind; constant advertising from day to day and from year to year wears an impression that lives as long as the impression in the rock."

Flirtations

Some of the Brain Trusters who have been urging Russian trade and Russian recognition on F. D. R. now are smiling at the international scramble to win Soviet favor.

A few months ago, Britain was boycotting the Bolshies, they were getting no credit here, and the Hitlerites were their avowed enemies.

Now it looks like a New Deal for Russia—at least as far as Russia is concerned. When they saw the United States ready to grab Soviet trade, Britain appointed a new ambassador, resumed trade relations. France started commercial treaty negotiations. Holland moved to accord recognition. Even a New York court ruled against Russian Whites who wanted to collect on Russian oil purchased by American companies. Russia is a sovereign state, the Court ruled, and even though unrecognized by the United States has a right to nationalize its oil industry.

The only fly in the Russian ointment has been Roosevelt's slowness in extending recognition. Dyed in the wool recognition opponents in the State Departments are waging an undercover campaign to block this, but getting nowhere.

The inside dope is that recognition will come as soon as F. D. R. gets around to it, possibly at the end of the summer. Meanwhile, however, there is real danger of losing Russian trade to European competitors.

Merry-Go-Round

Lady Perkins used to serve ginger ale paid for out of her own pocket at her Labor Department press conferences . . . But somebody complained that she was using paper cups at government expense. So she has stopped the ginger ale . . . Secretary Hull keeps a red-headed stenographer immediately outside his door on diplomatic days. She holds notebook in hand, pencil poised. As each visiting ambassador steps out, she steps in. Hull dictates a brief memo of the preceding conversation, the red-headed stenog steps out, the next victim steps in . . . Professor Moley's name is still inscribed on a State Department door as "Assistant Secretary of State" though he has moved over to the Justice Department. . . . The betting odds are about 2 to 1 that the name will come down in a month.

A new public address system has been installed which will assure good reception for all who attend. Practically all rooms and dormitory space has been reserved in advance and all indications point to one of the largest gatherings ever held on this ground since its establishment in 1918.

During the first four days the council will conduct two business sessions daily at 7:30 a. m. and 2 p. m. At the Saturday morning service, Rev. Joseph H. Smith, of Redlands, Cal., will bring the message and on Saturday evening Rev. W. L. Surbrook, of Detroit, Mich., will deliver the evangelistic message. Then comes the Sunday service from early morning until late at night. The camp closes August 27.

The camp is operated on interdenominational lines, a hearty welcome being issued to all people. Special services are held for the children and young people. The committee in charge consists of Rev. O. L. Ferguson, local pastor; Rev. A. E. Sayre, Columbus, and Rev. E. A. Keaton of Chillicothe.

I've Often Wondered

By PAT J. KIRWIN

WHO perfected "cellophane" and how it got its name?

Those persons who know classical languages might have easily figured out why this famous product was called "cellophane." And there are probably some, like myself, who could account for "cello" but were unable to figure out "phane." Nevertheless, R. G. Hintermeister, of the Du Pont Cellophane Co., New York, settled the issue the other day when he explained the entire question.

Here is what he had to say:

"Cellophane was discovered by a Swiss chemist, J. E. Brandenberger, who was trying to apply cellulose solution to cotton fabric to obtain brilliant and shiny designs. A great many experiments were made in this line but they were not successful. He then tried to produce a cellulose film, believing that if such a product could be developed it could be applied on the textile materials through sizing or pasting and thus produce a fabric which would remain pliant and flexible and at the same time have the qualities which he sought."

"In trying to produce this cellulose film, the idea of cellophane was born. Since cellophane is made from spruce wood, he chose the word "cello"—meaning from wood — and "phane" from the Greek word "phaneros"—meaning clear (transparent)."

CASH BENEFIT IS NOT SOLE BENEFIT

The cash payments wheat farmers will receive for contracting with their government to reduce the acreage seeded to wheat this fall are not the sole benefits to be derived from the wheat plan.

The payments, while large enough to compensate a farmer for taking part in the plan, are minor advantages of the plan, according to Guy Dowdy, in charge of the Wheat Adjustment plan in Pickaway County.

The larger goal is to obtain an increased price for wheat by reducing acreage in order to bring the supply of wheat in line with the effective demand.

"Parity insurance" is provided by the plan. That is, the plan operates to raise the price of wheat to the point that a bushel buys as much of a product as it bought in the period of 1909 to 1914.

Limited crop insurance is another feature of the plan. If the crop is ruined by insects or disease, or is winterkilled, the amount of the payments remains unchanged, for payments are based on past production.

Farmers also will be permitted to make some use of the land contracted by the government, for the production of products for home consumption or for purposes of soil improvement.

Costs of production and threshing are served on the acres taken from production.

BOSTON — Actuated by the death of her daughter, killed in an automobile accident, Mrs. Florence Westerhoff, of Scituate, wrote an appeal for safety on the highways and was awarded first prize by the governor's committee on street and highway safety.

THE WHEAT PLAN

Other Advantages of Wheat Plan of Far Greater Importance, Dowdy Says.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED BY GUY DOWDY

1. Question:—What is the first thing a farmer has to do to calculate whether he should join or not?

Answer:—Write down the acres planted in 1929, 1930 and 1931. Also the yield in 1930, 1931 and 1932. These figures are necessary.

2. Question:—If I come in on the wheat plan, or how many bushels will I receive adjustment payments?

Answer:—On 54 per cent of your average production for the base period, 1928-1932. This is your allotment, on which the payments will be made.

3. Question:—If I take part in the wheat plan, how much must I cut my acreage?

Answer:—The exact amount will not be known until August 24, when Secretary Wallace will set the amount. The reduction, however, will not be more than 20 per cent of your average acreage in the three years 1930 through 1932. It may be as little as 10 per cent.

4. uestion:—When will I get my cash payments?

Answer:—For this year's crop, you will get a payment of 20 cents on each bushel of your allotment this fall, and another payment of between 7 and 10 cents a bushel about June 1st, 1934.

5. Question:—What restrictions does the wheat plan place on my sales of the wheat I grow?

Answer:—None. The plan has nothing to do with sales. You can market your wheat when, where, and how you want to.

6. Question:—If I do not sign up for the wheat plan this year, can I come in later?

Answer:—No. This is a three-year plan, and you must sign up now or wait until after the 1935 crop year. You could come in then on any possible future wheat program.

7. Question:—If I had crop failure this year and harvested no wheat, can I take part in the wheat plan and receive payments?

Answer:—Yes, if you planted wheat and natural forces ruined it. Your Allotment is based on past production.

8. Question:—Do I have to fence off the land taken out of production?

Answer:—No. This would not be a sensible requirement. Go ahead with your rotation and get the land in grass ready for next crop.

9. Question:—What benefit does a farmer get that another does not?

Answer:—Those joining will get cash payments on 1933 crop, others will get nothing.

VOL. 4. NO. 33. Published by STEVENSON'S Tuesday, August 15, 1933.

Official information relative to the workings of the N.R.A. seems to be hard to get. And for that reason furniture men generally were misinformed about the processing tax on matresses. Word was passed around to us that the tax would amount to something like $2.21 for each 50-lb felt mattress. We passed this information out to the readers of RTT in good faith. Word now comes to us that a readjustment has been made and that the tax will not amount to as much as 25 cents per mattress. We're sorry that we misinformed you, but we had the wrong dope on the matter. At any rate, it's a mighty good time to purchase new mattresses for prices are not going to go lower, but higher.

Sometime ago, we placed an Estate Heatrola in the home of a Roundtown resident. A brother of the owner, finding that the Heatrola was so satisfactory—heating the floor 'neverything—has us deliver one to his home. And now we are informed that a third member of this family are considering the purchase of an Estate. It is usually easy to sell an article in a family, but unless that article proves entirely satisfactory, it's another matter when it comes to selling the second one. So, we're rather convinced that this family is not disappointed in the results obtained from their Heatrola purchases.

And speaking of Heatrolas, right now is the best time to place your order for one. Our prices are still based on the lowest list in Heatrola history, in spite of the fact that a new and higher one is now in effect. All Expenses Considered... Gas Heat Costs No More

Homes Using the Modern Fuel, Gas, Eliminate Many Incidental Bills

When making home heating plans for next Fall and Winter, many items in addition to actual cost of the fuel should be considered. What incidental expenses will be added to the original cost of the fuel? Will fuel dust, ashes and soot result in heavy cleaning expense in the home? Must the fuel be handled? Must ashes be removed? Will furnace tending be necessary? Will uneven temperatures result in colds and other ailments, causing additional medical expense?

Janitrol, a complete gas-fired heating unit, fits into your present furnace and furnishes clean, healthful, automatic gas heat. Easily installed. Convenient terms.

A Moore's Circulating Gas Heater is ideal for homes without central heating plants; also for heating one or more rooms. See the new attractive models.

Incidental Costs Are Important Items!

Cleaning, fuel handling, removal of ashes, furnace tending and colds involve much time and expense — not to mention discomfort and inconvenience. Their cost in time and money should be taken into consideration when figuring the cost of home heating.

Homes using gas heat reduce cleaning expense to a minimum — they eliminate ashes, smoke and soot — they are bothered by no furnace tending and by no handling of fuel — they enjoy constant, healthful temperature — there is less need to be doctoring colds and kindred ills. And when the cost of clean, healthful gas heat is compared to the cost of other heating methods with their many important incidental expenses, it is found that it really is economical to heat with gas. We invite you to get ALL the facts on heating costs.

National Labor Board Looming As the Most Potent NRA Force

WASHINGTON — Keep your eye on the NRA's National Board of Arbitration, or as it has just been renamed, the National Labor Board.

Set up as a result of the Pennsylvania coal strike, insiders are already envisioning it as the single most potent and important activity in the future operations of the Recovery Administration. For this reason:

When the shouting and tumult over the coding and re-employment labors are over, the biggest job confronting the NRA will be the enforcement and policing of its thousands of trade agreements. This is the job cut out for the Labor Board.

Dr. Leo Wolman, brilliant economist Chairman of the NRA Labor Advisory group, and second ranking member of the National Labor Board, is already working on this. He has formulated confidential plans for the establishment of a large statistical agency to blanket the whole of American industry. This body is to furnish information for the mediators of the Board, who will sit in judgment on all disputes.

In Japan it is not considered good manners to smile, but Katsuji Debuchi, diminutive ambassador of Japan, has lived in the United States so long he usually wears a grin as broad as a Cheshire cat. But the other day at State Department, he looked sad.

"Last week," he explained, "Japan evacuated Chinese soil as far north as the Great Wall. That was very important. But there was not a line in the newspapers—not one line.

"If we had sent our troops south of the Great Wall into China you would have printed headlines."

Forgotten Man

A lot of job-seekers since March 4 have been holding themselves up as martyrs, forgotten by the New Deal they have helped to put in office. Some of them deserve sympathy, most of them don't.

There is one, however, who makes no claim to martyrdom, but as much as anyone, he deserves the title of Forgotten Man.

Three years ago the Federal Power Commission was sitting on dynamite. Millions of dollars had been "written up" on the books of the power companies on which the public eventually would take the loss. No one in the Commission dared bring this to light—except one man. He was Charles A. Russell, newly appointed solicitor.

Russell had the nerve to tip off certain senators, appeared before Congressional committees, waged a campaign against the power companies. But the latter stood supreme with the last Administration. Eventually Hoover fired him.

Roosevelt, with his eyes on the White House, saw his opportunity, fired Russell, used him for his power campaign. Russell served up until election. But now while lame ducks are appointed to the Federal Power Commission, Russell sits on the side-lines trying to eke out a living suing Andy Mellon for back taxes.

HEAVY VEHICLE CRUSHES, KILLS YOUNG FARMER

William Miller, 28, Sole Support of Family, Taken Near New Holland

VILLAGE SHOCKED

Struggled to Feet After Being Run Over

The New Holland community was shocked Monday by the tragic death of William Miller, 28, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Miller, tenants on the Mrs. Lou Huston farm, who was killed when he fell from the seat of a manure spreader and was crushed under the heavy vehicle.

Funeral services will be held from St. Coleman's Catholic church, Washington C. H., at 9 a. m. Wednesday, with Rev. Fr. Fogerty officiating. Burial will be made in the Catholic cemetery there.

The sole support of a family of four, two of whom are invalids, young Miller had been working on the Huston farm nearly two years. The tragedy took place about 75 or 100 feet from the barn while Miller and Jacob Logenstein, a German farmhand, were engaged in hauling manure from the barnyard.

STONE IS CAUSE

The accident occurred at a shallow ditch in a field where a stone about the size of a gallon bucket was struck by the right front wheel as the spreader dropped into the ditch. The spreader apparently lurched violently, Logenstein, who was in the barn at the time, believes, unseating Miller and throwing him into the traces back of the horses. One wheel passed over his chest and also crushed the calf of his leg.

Apparently unaware of his serious injuries, Miller struggled to his feet and was helped into the spreader. Logenstein started to drive the spreader to the house but when they reached the barnyard, Miller cried, "How near are we to the house." These were his last words and he died before Dr. Kahler of New Holland arrived to alleviate his distress.

CHEST CRUSHED

Examination disclosed that his chest had been crushed, ribs and collar bone were broken and his heart was injured, death apparently being due to the heart injury and internal hemorrhages.

The tragedy has stirred the sympathy of the New Holland vicinity because young Miller was known as a sincere and honest workman and the sole support of his family. His father and only brother are both invalids.

A native of Evansville, Indiana, Miller was born in 1905, a son of Joseph and Minnie Wigart Miller, and with his parents moved to Dayton several years ago. Mrs. Huston, a resident of Dayton, urged them to come to her farm a mile south of New Holland. They

FATAL BOAT UNDER WATER FIVE YEARS RETURNED TO HALL

A boat in which two south central Ohio men, Walter Reed and Charles Nungster, went to their deaths five years ago, has been found in the Scioto river. The pair drowned May 16, 1928, after borrowing the row-boat from Russell Hall. They had gone fishing.

It was thought the boat was blown to pieces by dynamite but after being at the bottom of the stream for five years it has been found at the Kellenberger bridge by two youths who returned it to its owner.

Mr. Hall, of Kingston, says it is in excellent condition despite the five years under the water.

33 WOULD BE CLERK

Commissioners To Meet Thursday To Announce Pickens' Successor.

With 33 written applications received, the Pickaway-co commissioners adjourned Monday afternoon until Thursday at 9 a. m. Shortly after the meeting has started it is expected the new clerk of courts to succeed Ferd M. Pickens, resigned, will be announced.

Some persons are of the opinion that the appointment has already been made and the commissioners are withholding their announcement until Thursday. All the 'county dads,' John W. Hay, Ralph E. May and Burr H. Rader, deny this is a fact declaring that no agreement of any kind has been reached.

The applications were opened and read Monday afternoon shortly after Mr. Pickens' resignation was read but no action was taken and no comment made on any of the applications or applicants.

Mr. Pickens has been appointed chief counsel for the Columbus branch of the federal Home-owners' Loan corporation. His term will not end until Jan. 1, 1935. He began his second term last January 1.

Allen 'Jack' Atwill, of the state examiner's office, was to check Mr. Pickens out of the office Tuesday. Mrs. Ruth Pickens, wife of the clerk and his deputy, will remain in the office until a new clerk has been named and qualified.

FOOD MEN PLEDGE AID TO NRA PLAN

Will Adjust Prices Agreeable To All; Separate Meetings Planned.

Pledging cooperation to President Roosevelt's NRA program, 15 restauranteurs and confectioners met at the Boggs Hotel Monday evening and agreed to adjust prices to conform with present conditions, and which will be both satisfactory to the retailer and consumer.

The same group will meet again next Monday at the Boggs at 8 p. m. Separate group meetings were also announced for this week. All confectioners are urged to attend a meeting at George Roof's restaurant at 3 p. m. Wednesday and food dispensers will hold a meeting at 8 p. m. Thursday at Hanley's Tea Room, E. Main-st.

Variations in prices throughout Circleville were discussed at Monday's meeting and those present agreed to stabilize prices that will be agreeable to the seller and buyer. In the past there have been a dozen prices charged for the same product, which indicates that something is wrong, one person who attended the meeting pointed out.

Opening and closing hours of restaurants and confectioneries are not expected to be affected by the NRA code.

FINLEY HELD FOR CUTTING

Hocking-Co Youth Captured Early Tuesday While En-route To His Home.

Paul Finley, of near Adelphi, was being held in the county jail today after his capture early Tuesday by Sheriff Charles Radcliff and Deputy Sheriff Bryan Custer. Finley, charged with cutting Floyd "Tafe" Redman, 24, was caught on Route 56 while enroute to his home in the automobile of a local man whom he had induced to haul him.

The sheriff's office had received a tip concerning Finley's whereabouts and hurrying to the Adelphi pike they caught up with the automobile in which Finley was riding. The name of the man taking him home was not disclosed because he has no connection in the case, officers said.

Finley will be charged with cutting with intent to wound. Redman, feared critically hurt, was taken to his home from Berger hospital Tuesday. He is very weak having lost a great amount of blood.

Finley was trapped Sunday night after the fracas at Washington-and Corwin-sts but escaped. He walked north on the Chesapeake & Ohio railroad tracks past Bell's siding to Gray's station. He hid in a woods all day Monday and came to Circleville Monday night.

His "pal" Hobart Ross is held in jail as a witness to the cutting.

Filled with "big names" the list is headed by Mrs. Frank B. Willis of Delaware, widow of the late U. S. senator from Ohio, who was one of prohibition's most vigorous campaigners.

JOHNSON NAMED

J. W. Johnson, N. Court-st, retired local publisher and one of prohibition's most ardent supporters, has been named on the list. The name "John C. Fuhr, Williamsport merchant" was also included in the list but no such person is known.

Harry P. Carruth, of Chillicothe, son-in-law of Mrs. J. W. Adkins, is a repeal party candidate.

Dr. Howard Hyde Russell of Westerville, founder of the Anti-Saloon League; Dr. Edmund D. Soper, president of Ohio Wesleyan university at Delaware; Dr. Robert N. Nominating petitions, requiring 5,000 signatures for each candidate, will be circulated immediately. Obtaining sufficient signatures, according to S. P. McNaught, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, "will be a small task."

ARRESTS CLEAR URSCHEL CASE AND DEPOT MASSACRE OF FIVE

Harvey Bailey, Notorious Killer, and Ten Other Persons Captured In Series of Raids By Federal Men; Part of Oil Man's Marked Money Found in Texas Farmhouse.

DALLAS, Tex., Aug. 15—Swift prosecution was promised today for Harvey J. Bailey, notorious desperado, and ten other persons seized by federal operatives for the kidnaping of Charles F. Urschel, millionaire Oklahoma oil man, and the massacre of five men at Kansas City.

Department of justice agents announced that Urschel's kidnapers will in all probability be taken to Oklahoma City for federal trial for the interstate abduction. They will be given speedy trials, it was announced.

Raids in three cities, St. Paul, Denver and Paradise, Tex., brought capture of the eleven suspects in the two major crimes of the year as the federal government fired its opening gun in President Roosevelt's campaign against the underworld.

TRAPPED IN HOUSE

Bailey, a notorious bank robber and killer who fled the Kansas state penitentiary last Memorial day, was trapped as he slept in a farmhouse near Paradise, Tex. Surrounding him was a small arsenal of guns and ammunition.

Urschel's fingerprints were found in the house, and the oil operator identified the farmhouse as the place where he was held until $200,000 ransom was paid.

Some of the marked money paid for Urschel's release was found in Bailey's possession, federal operatives announced. The exconvict has been identified as the man who wielded a machine gun that killed Frank Nash, convict, and four officers at the Kansas City union station June 17.

BATES IDENTIFIED

Department of justice agents in Denver arrested Albert L. Bates, 39, ex-convict, as a suspect in the Urschel kidnaping. Bates fled the Van Burcan county jail at Paw Paw, Michfl, on Christmas day, 1931.

Bates and Bailey were said to have participated in the St. Valentine's day massacre of seven gangsters in Chicago in 1929.

At St. Paul federal agents were holding four more men in connection with the Urschel kidnaping, charged with passing part of the

COLUMBUS' SEWAGE PLAN IS PREPARED

Estimated Cost $1,300,000; State Board May Act On Plans Sept. 1.

Circleville and Pickaway-co residents, who have been exposed to the filthy odors emanating from the Scioto river, were assured of some relief, Tuesday, when plans for a sewage disposal plant to be erected at Columbus at an estimated cost of $1,300,000 were submitted to the state health department.

The Ohio supreme court ruled sometime ago that the city of Columbus must build a sewage plant by Aug. 20.

Dr. H. G. Southard, director of health, indicated that Columbus' plans might not be acted on soon as the department was swamped with plant proposals from 100 other Ohio cities.

F. H. Warner, chief engineer for the health department, said that Columbus' plans probably could be given the necessary examination for recommendation to the public health council when it meets Sept. 1.

Mr. Crist will be employed on a fee basis, according to Mr. Brunner, and will be paid in addition to the amount of [illegible] Pickaway-co.

An appraiser is yet to be announced.

Mr. Harness is spending Tuesday and Wednesday of each week in this city at which time Pickaway-co's Home Loan business will be transacted.

Mr. Crist's name was sent in by Mell G. Underwood, congressman for this district, by C. A. Leist, Democratic chairman. He was the only applicant for the office, it was announced.

F. D. R. MEETS NRA LEADERS

Conference at White House Today To Go Over Nation Developments.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—President Roosevelt today planned a thorough inspection of the great machine he built to manufacture prosperity.

The weekly meeting of his executive council, scheduled for 2 p. m., furnished the opportunity for the survey. At that time all the heads of the many parts of the big machine will gather at Mr. Roosevelt's desk and spread before him the inside picture of a goverment at work.

A series of conferences he held while vacationing at his home in Hyde Park, N. Y., and dozens of meetings held here since he returned, kept the president in close touch with his recovery organization. But not since the closing days of July has he had a chance to assemble all the parts and look at its accomplishments as a whole.

MAXIN PARDONED

COLUMBUS, Aug. 15—The state parole board reported to Governor George White today that it "has no objection" to the granting of a pardon to Paul Maxin, 25-year-old escaped inmate of the Mansfield reformatory who "made good" as an advertising executive in Chicago on his "stolen freedom."

The attitude of the parole board was presented to the governor by Charles Sharpe, a member of the board, who interviewed Maxin yesterday at the Mansfield reformatory where he was returned recently to resume serving a one to-15 year sentence for the theft of class pins from the Coitsville high school.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15—Brig. Gen. Hugh S. Johnson runs the National Recovery Administration on an average of not over six hours sleep nightly. He has gained weight doing it.

The statements are made on good authority, for they come from Mrs. Hugh S. Johnson, the charming wife and co-worker of the NRA chieftain.

Mulrooney Advocates Whipping Post For Kidnapers, Other Major Criminals

NEW YORK, Aug. 15—Kidnapers and others convicted of major crimes should be publicly whipped every six months over a period of 20 years. Former New York Police Commissioner Edward P. Mulrooney said Monday before the first public forum on racketeering held by the senatorial sub-committee of which U. S. Senator Royal S. Copeland is chairman.

"If kidnapers, after conviction, should be sentenced to 20 years in prison, plus 15 lashes every six months, this punishment should have a salutary effect on the crime situation," said Mulrooney, now head of the New York state beer control commission, and one of the leading police authorities in the world.

"MAY SOUND BRUTAL"

"This lashing system may sound brutal but the kidnaper, and other major criminals, are just as brutal to their victims," continued Mulrooney.

"Canada, England, and the state of Delaware are not above administering lashes. You have to humiliate the modern gangster."

He pictured the average American criminal of today as a young man who made crime a career, was willing to kill, had plenty of money with which to work and whose only goal was "the dollar."

"He thinks he can beat the law with the aid of money," Mulrooney declared.

Mulrooney also advocated universal fingerprinting of school children.

"During the hunt for the Lindbergh baby kidnapers, thousands of mothers wrote me asking to fingerprint their children for protection," said Mulrooney.

He spoke up for a central fingerprinting bureau.

...ll Teams Meet In Crucial Game

A recreation ball tilt which will have quite a bearing on the first half championship of the league will be played this evening between the Sinclairs Oils, in second place, and the Circleville Oils, in fourth position.

The Sinclairs need the victory to be tied with the Walisa Sluggers for first place; a defeat will give the Walisa team the first half leadership.

The contest is to start at 6:15 with George Vlerebome tossing them for the Sinclairs and Carl Purcell or Paul Wallace for the Circleville Oils.

One of the most interesting games of the season was played Monday evening between the Fats and the Leans with the latter outfit winning, 16-15.

More good honest-to-goodness fun was gleaned from this fray than from any played this season. Flip-flops, terrible errors, exciting base-running and Ralph Mack with his pipe were the features of the game.

The Leans, defeated until they came to bat in the last inning, put on a rally which scored six runs to clinch the victory.

The lineups follow:

Leans: Zeimer, p; Rooney, 2b; Mack, cf; Kelzach, c; Hegele, 1b; T. Miller, rf; J. Denman, ss; Palm, cf; Hanley, 3b; Scott, lf.

Fats: M. Friedman, 1b; F. Davis, p; T. White, 2b; E. Hoffman, lf; E. Stout, 3b; R. Lane, cf; Nickerson, ss; Herdman, rf; Shellhamer, lf; Eichinger, c.

FOXX BREAKS LEAGUE MARK

Philadelphia Slugger Drives Nine Runs Over Plate At Cleveland.

NEW YORK, Aug. 15—"The glory dies not and the grief is past."

Jimmy Foxx may not keep a diary and he may not care for little jottings from the poets, but if he happens to be that kind of a guy, he undoubtedly trotted out the little red book today and penned the above.

For the man they say Connie Mack might, for proper inducement, sell down the river, attached himself more closely than ever to Philadelphia fans with a remarkable performance yesterday against the Cleveland Indians. He connected for a homer, triple, double and single to drive in nine runs, constituting a new American league record.

MAKES BETTER BUY

Of course, Mr. Mack may take the slant that the feat of his promising first baseman makes him all the more attractive as a buy, but probably in the end sanity will prevail and Mr. Mack will let his great hitter hang around a while longer, no matter how badly some other club might need him.

Jimmy's outburst topped the old American league mark made by Topsy Hartzell of the New York Yankees in 1911 and since equalled by Harry Heilman, Lou Gehrig, Earl Averill and Carl Reynolds. Foxx is still three short of the major league record established by Jim Bottomley of the St. Louis Cards in 1924.

Here's the record in Foxx's record-smashing performance:

First inning—Tripled with Cramer and Cochrane on base.

Second inning—Hit homer with Williams, MaHaffey and Cramer scoring ahead of him.

Fourth inning—Doubled with Cochrane on second.

Sixth inning—Singled to center to score McNair and Cramer.

The homer was No. 35 for Jimmy, placing him nine ring-around-the-rosies ahead of the esteemed Babe Ruth, who is touching bottom right now in one of the worst slumps of his career.

formal statement issued with the list.

Drys chose their candidates from every walk of life.

Walter F. Kirk of Port Clinton, master of the Ohio State Grange, was selected from agriculture, but numerous other farmers also were chosen.

Two stand-pat drys from the Ohio legislature—the veteran W. D. Ditmars of Holmsville, Democratic representative from Holmes-co. and Mrs. Della M. Slagel of Youngstown, Republican representative from Mahoning county—were assigned to leading places on the ticket.

Under provisions of the Mosier-Lawrence law providing for a repeal convention, the candidates elected as delegates at the Nov. 7 election will meet in convention on Dec. 5 and go through the formality of voting to reject or ratify the 21st amendment, repealing the 18th amendment.

The result will be made known in advance when the votes are counted Nov. 7 and it is determined whether a wet or dry delegation has been elected.

Announcing of a ticket by the drys marks their surrender in their fight to prevent a vote on Nov. 7. No further attempt to force a referendum on the Mosier-Lawrence law is to be made.

MULROONEY

During Mulrooney's testimony, Professor Raymond Moley, assistant secretary of state, in charge of President Roosevelt's special survey into crime, entered the hearing chamber in the bar association building.

Joseph B. Keenan, special assistant to the attorney general, spoke of the efficiency of the federal identification bureau and its fingerprinting system which had been of great aid to local and state authorities.

He referred to the ease with which gangsters could obtain machine guns and expressed the hope that when national legislation was considered to control the traffic in machine guns "no powerful lobby—nor interest of sportsmen will have sufficient weight to defeat passage."

COLUMBUS DEALER SUICIDES IN LEAP FROM CITY HOSPITAL

COLUMBUS, Aug. 15.—Leaving behind a note declaring he "couldn't stand the pain any longer," James A. Beery, prominent Columbus real estate dealer, today leaped from a fifth floor window of Grant Hospital here, according to hospital attaches. He was fatally injured.

Beery had been a patient in the hospital since last Wednesday when he underwent a minor operation.

Beery, who was treasurer of the Hansberger, Marion & Beery Co., and president of the Franklin Mortgage Co., was a native of Fairfield-co. He had been a resident of Columbus for the last 40 years.

ransom money paid for the millionaire's release. They are Sam J. Kronick, Charles Wolk, Sam Kozberg and William Nelson.

Four of the five occupants seized in the Texas farmhouse with Bailey were being held in the Dallas-co jail here with the escaped convict. They are: R. G. Shannon, said to be the owner of the place; his wife, Ora, their son, Armon and his wife, Oleta.

Urschel was kidnaped from his Oklahoma City home July 22 and was released in Oklahoma nine days later.

The arrests revealed that the millionaire had cooperated closely with federal investigators. The hum of an airplane that passed above his place of captivity at 9:15 a. m. and at 5:45 p. m. each day directed investigators to the secluded farmhouse.

Urschel informed federal agents that on one Sunday morning the plane did not pass, and from department of commerce weather data and American Airway pilots reports determined that the plane had veered off its course near Dallas to escape threatening weather.

Armed with this data, investigators circled an area near Paradise and located the farmhouse.

When Bailey led eleven convicts from the Lansing, Kas., prison Memorial day he was serving ten to fifty years for bank robbery. He was also wanted for the $2,000,000 holdup of the Lincoln, Neb., bank and Trust company Sept. 17, 1930. He is also wanted for the murder of J. Earl Smith, Tulsa attorney.

BOHNERT IS READY FOR TAX SESSION

Wants Beer Tax Cut; Session Should Have Been Later, He Declares.

Nathan C. Bohnert, Monroe-twp, Pickaway-co's representative to the General Assembly, was a visitor in Circleville Tuesday, preparing to leave for Columbus, where he will attend the opening session of Gov. George White's special session of the legislature Wednesday.

"I don't know what he plans to do," Mr. Bohnert replied when asked if he knew anything about the governor's plans. Mr. Bohnert was also queried about the governor's proposal to slash one-cent from the two-cent cap tax on beer. "That tax should never have been put on beer. I voted against it. It's a well known fact that the more you tax, the more trouble you'll have with the booze traffic," he said.

The representative said he thought the governor should have waited until December to recall the legislature. "Then he'll know something about the December tax collection and he may be able to advance plans for taking care of state aid schools," he asserted.

Mr. Bohnert is slowly recovering from a severe illness. He still shows sign of the sickness but says he's getting better.

Threats To Finish Job Heard As One Negro Escapes Mob's Violence.

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Aug. 15.—Threats to "finish the job" today brought mobilization of a company of the Alabama National Guard to protect the life of Elmore Clark, 28-year-old negro, who with two other negro youths accused of the attack-murder of an 18-year-old white girl, was seized from sheriff's deputies early Sunday by a masked mob.

Clark's two companions, Dan Pippin, 18, and A. T. Hardin, 16, were slain by the lynch mob shortly after the sheriff's automobile was waylaid on a lonely stretch of the Tuscaloosa-Birmingham highway as the negroes were being spirited to the Jefferson-co (Birmingham) jail for safekeeping.

Clark, though badly wounded, escaped with his life in the fusillade of bullets that riddled the bodies of the two others with more than two dozen leaden slugs.

LEGLESS SWIMMER ABANDONS EFFORT TO CROSS CHANNEL

DOVER, Eng., Aug. 15—Charles Ziebelman, legless Chicago swimmer, gave up his attempt to swim the English channel today.

He entered the water at 7:30 p. m. yesterday, only to encounter mist that hung over the channel throughout the night.

It was impossible to estimate the distance he covered when he abandoned the attempt, but an hour and a half after entering the water he had covered five and a half miles.

He was accompanied by assistants in rowboats when he set out to reach the French coast near Calais.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—After an absence of many weeks because of illness, Secretary of the Treasury Woodin will return to Washington to reassume his duties shortly after Labor Day.

TWO NEGROES DIE

COLUMBUS, Aug. 15.—Hopes, prayers and even the intervention of a white woman today had gone for naught in the cases of James and Joseph Murphy, negro brothers.

Protesting their innocence to the last the two brothers were put to death in the electric chair at Ohio Penitentiary shortly after 8:30 o'clock last night for the murder of Harry Friedhoff, Silverton bank cashier during a bank holdup.

You'd like the ROBINSONS

THEY'RE the kind of people it's nice to have as neighbors. They always seem to have such a good time together. Their home isn't large, but it's furnished in excellent taste; everything fits perfectly, as though it had been made especially for the very space it occupies.

And their dinners are charming. Not expensive, but different . . . new and interesting dishes that other people haven't heard of yet. Mrs. Robinson dresses beautifully, too. Her clothes have that air of coming straight from Paris, yet she doesn't spend much on them.

If you should ask her how it is she manages things so well, Mrs. Robinson would smile and say, "It's really very simple. We budget our income. That tells us how much money we have to spend. And we read the advertisements. That tells us how to spend our money wisely."

Confidence and Conceit

EFFICIENCY experts and practitioners in the art of supersalesmanship lay stress on what is casually termed "self-confidence." To sell one's product or to sell one's self, they say, one must have confidence in one's products or in one's ability and talents.

But there is a wide difference between legitimate self-confidence and stupid conceit. The latter quality, unfortunately, is to be found in many persons, in many different walks of life, and when displayed to any noticeable degree at all is insufferable. Beautiful women, that is, those who are naturally beautiful and do not have to depend upon artificial aids, often take on the air of having been altogether responsible for their pulchritude. They forget that fate just as easily might have made them hideous. And the same thing is true of the handsome youth who, realizing his handsomeness, affects the role of having been altogether responsible for his good looks. Fate might just as easily have marred him, too.

Conceit, however, takes its worst form in those human frames which lay claim to more than the average brains or intellectuality, and this applies particularly to professional walks of life. Even in the matter of brains or intellect, whatever gods there be obviously are as capable of producing morons as they are of producing intellectual giants. The most beautiful woman, of course, is that woman who, although quite lovely, seems unconscious of it. And the wisest man is he who realizes that mortal wisdom, and especially his own endowment of it, has many limitations.

Avoiding the Extreme

THE extremist is never with a large following. There are two extremes in all things, but the multitude will always be found half way between the two. In such a humble occupation as housekeeping there are the two extremes and the happy medium. The housekeeper who is excessively tidy and immaculate fails as completely in her purpose as does the slovenly housewife.

The good housekeeper, who is not without honor even in her own country, is the one who follows the middle course between the slattern and the eternal dust-chaser.

Everyone knows that an untidy house is the cause of all sorts of wrong living on the part of the husbands, wives and children. And yet household tidiness can be carried to excess. A home that is one thing, but a home where everything is so prim that the members of the family and callers feel ill at ease is quite another thing.

It often happens that women who strive to be good housekeepers forget about the comfort and contentment of the family. Collecting all sorts of odds and ends that seem valueless to mother or father is a trait of all normal children. The bits of colored glass, or the gay magazine clippings, and the broken top that an over-neat mother may destroy may cause many unhappy pangs to the child. Likewise father's old pipe, or the disreputable pair of fishing shoe have a value to him far above mere household tidiness.

After all, the only purpose of household tidiness is to make the home comfortable to the family and presentable to visitors.

"STOLEN LOVE"

by HAZEL LIVINGSTON

COPYRIGHT BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

Joan Hastings, seventeen and beautiful, lives a secluded life with her two old maiden aunts in a run-down house. Aunt Evvie reveals to her how her mother had won her father away from Aunt Babe but Joan refuses to believe anything but good of her mother. She falls in love with Bill Martin, a garage worker, who comes once a week to care for Aunt Evvie's car. Meanwhile, the aunts plan to send Joan away to school.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER 6

They were both so young and inexperienced. Even tall Bill who lounged around the docks, and liked a fight now and then.

He didn't intend to do odd jobs all his life. He told her about his dreams, shyly at first, more confidently and fluently later.

"You see, I had to be out of school so much. Dad died when I was a little shaver. I had to work some, so I always seemed kind of overgrown when I got back to school. Didn't fit in with the rest, somehow. So I was glad when I got through. You might not think it's much to work in a garage."

"Oh I do—I do—"

"Well, your aunts wouldn't," he amended reasonably. "But I'm learning the business. After I learn it—"

She drew a little nearer, her lovely sensitive face all aglow. "What then—what are you going to do then—"

He didn't know, and he hated himself for not knowing. "Oh—quit, I guess. I'm kind of no account, I guess—"

"Oh no—no you aren't."

"You don't understand," he burst awkwardly. "You—oh well—you're different. We're so doggone poor. Ma and I—and my sister and her husband live with us, and the three kids—"

"Oh, but we're poor too!" Joan's eyes were shining. She was glad she was poor, too, so that Bill wouldn't mind being poor alone. "You don't know how poor we are. Why our roof leaks terribly. The whole third story is awful in winter. Mrs. Heeley and I have to put wash basins, and buckets and everything out to catch the rain, and the wall paper is all peeling off—"

He looked up at the big house, with its yellow turrets reaching affluently skyward, and shook his head. "That's not the same. It's a different kind of poor we are. You don't know—"

"Yes, I do. I know where you live. In the little white house down in the hollow—"

"Near the fishery," he finished defiantly, "and the old saloons—"

"I don't care. I'd as soon live there as our house!"

"Johnnie—you wouldn't!"

It was the first time he had called her that. Her very finger tips were tingling. "Yes, I would!"

And then the gate creaked, there was a scuffling along the gravel walk—Aunt Evvie and Aunt Babe coming home. There was barely time for Joan to scamper up the back stairs before Evvie's latchkey turned in the front door. It was always that way. Somebody was always interrupting them.

Once he held her hands tight. "Suppose I won't let you go?" he teased.

She smiled back at him, but her clear dark eyes were serious. "Sometimes I wish you wouldn't," she said.

She was always saying things like that, things that thrilled and scared him. She wasn't like other girls. There was no coquetry in her. She who had no love but Bill's, couldn't be niggardly with hers. She wanted him to know she loved him.

There was no doubt about it in her mind now. There would never be anyone but Bill. Bill was hope, and love and life, everything she had dreamed of, everything she needed to live for.

In his saner moments, counting out the money for the butcher bill, or putting up a new clothes line for his mother, he knew that it was all wrong.

"Gosh, I must have been crazy. A Van Fleet—and me. Ye gods! She's just a fool kind—stringing me along I guess. I guess she wouldn't ever care for a fellow like me."

And then he couldn't rest until he had seen her again. "Just this once," he would think. "I'll see her this once, and I'll kind of let her know that it's no good, and we'd better cut it out before her aunts find out and have a fit."

He tried to tell her late one afternoon when they walked up the hill road above the sea. There was a sheltered place in some stunted bushes, just off the road. They sat there in the sunshine, with the glittering bay spread out before them, and watched the fat white ferryboat churning into the slip.

"I suppose I'll be clearing out of here before very long—going over to the city," he said guardedly.

She nodded. "I s'pose so."

"No opportunities much here—"

"No—"

A feeling of utter desolation swept over him. "You don't care!" he cried sharply.

"Oh—but I didn't think—I didn't think you meant—that you wouldn't come back—" The words fairly tumbled out of her aching throat. "Bill—you didn't mean, not to see me any more?"

He saw her in a sort of golden mist, the sun was so bright, and his eyes, somehow were blurred. No use pretending he didn't love her—he did—more than anything in the world, more than he had thought he could ever love anyone. And he was going to give her up, because she was a Van Fleet, and he was just no account.

He turned his head away, murmured something about "Best thing that could happen for you—"

Swiftly her arms twined round him. She was clinging to him with all her strength. "No—no—" she panted. "It wouldn't be. And besides, I won't give you up—ever!" Her lips, incredibly soft and red, met his. "I won't give you up—ever!"

With Joan's kisses sweet on his lips, and her honest eyes, clear and green as the sea, promising, Bill made one last lame effort.

"Gee—it would be years before I could—marry anybody. I'd have to clear out for a while first and get a job. I haven't even got the price of a brass ring!"

She kissed him again. "I wouldn't care!"

Slowly they got to their feet. The sun was setting. "I'll have to hurry!" she said. The looked at each other and laughed delightedly. They were hardly moving, they were walking so slowly, but the Van Fleet hedge seemed running to meet them—they were there so soon.

"Good-bye—dear!"

"Good-bye!" The word was a caress.

Joan floated into the kitchen. She was walking on air. Mrs. Heeley was mashing potatoes, and her head was tied up in a red plaid shawl. A sign that her temper and neuralgia were at their worst, but Joan was blind to bad signs.

She began to cut bread in a beatific daze.

"I said," Heeley was shouting now. Joan had to hear her. "I said your Aunt Evvie was waitin' in the library to see you. She got a letter about you today, and if I was you, I wouldn't keep her waiting."

"Did you want me, Aunt Evvie?" Joan was still walking on air. Not even the thought of Aunt Evvie's possible displeasure could penetrate the warm dream in which she moved.

"Bill loves me—Bill loves me—" It was a kind of litany repeating itself in her heart.

But Aunt Evvie wasn't displeased. Now that she was going to be rid of Joan once and forever, she felt a glow of something almost like affection for her. "After all, she's been a good girl, considering how pretty she is. It might have been worse," she thought. And aloud she said, "Yes—I just heard from Cousin Belle. She's sent the money for you to go to Philadelphia."

"Philadelphia! Way back East—why Aunt Evvie!"

Joan couldn't believe it. Sausalito, with occasional visits to San Rafael, and still rarer trips to San Francisco—had been her world. To think of going to Philadelphia!

"Boarding school," Aunt Evvie continued. "Cousin Belle conducts a very fine school for young ladies. You'll be expected to help any way you can—"

Boarding school! Magic words. All the stories of fudge parties, midnight suppers, and boarding school adventures passed in quick succession through Joan's throbbing head. To be able to spend the waiting time—the time when Bill would be away—that way. An engaged girl in a boarding school. Getting letters. Maybe Bill would go East too. He said he'd have to go some place—he couldn't stay in Sausalito. Maybe he'd be nearer—and they could see each other often—

"Oh, Aunt Evvie!" she cried—and flung eager arms around her—"Oh, I can't tell you—it's the most wonderful day in my whole life!"

"Well, don't be foolish about it," Evvie said, not unkindly. She disentangled Joan's loving hands and straightened her stiff white shirtwaist automatically. It occurred to her for the first time that it would be very quiet in the old house without the girl. Too quiet. Heeley was a half-wit, and Babe was a simpleton. Joan at least had been worthy of battle.

"She can't go East in that outfit!" Babe put in sharply. "She's got to have clothes. You're so smart thinking of everything, Evelyn Van Fleet—I suppose you didn't think of that? I knew it would cost more than just carfare, and where're you going to get the money?"

"Oh, this is all right—I'll press it." Joan who was already climbing down a fire-escape in Cousin Belle's School for Young Ladies, meeting Bill—a miraculously tailored and glittering Bill, with love in his eyes, and money in his pockets, couldn't be bothered with details. Just let her get there. Everything would come out right.

"I'm going to take her over to the city tomorrow, and get her some things," Evvie said grandly. "Belle sent fifty dollars over the price of the ticket. Ten dollars will be oceans for meals on the train—that leave forty for clothes."

Forty dollars for clothes. Forty dollars! It would buy everything—everything she'd ever wanted. And only the other day she had been crying because she couldn't have two dollars for a blue cotton crepe. But that was before Bill came. All the good fortune was mixed up with Bill. The prince came, and directly the fairy godmother waved her wand and sent railroad tickets, and new dresses. . . .

It was too wonderful. Too much to happen in one day. Blindly groping for her handkerchief, with a little choked cry she fled to the friendly quiet of her room.

Pulaski's Choice

By IRVIN S. COBB

IT so befell in the months preceding our entry into the Great War that in a suburb of Chicago a preparedness league was organized. Swept away by patriotic love for his adopted country a youth named Pulaski joined it. Now, military drill was a part of the duties of a member, and young Pulaski did not take with any great amount of enthusiasm to this feature.

One evening the commander of his squad sought to liven him

"Buck up Herman!" he said. "You learn how to be a soldier, and some of these days you may go back to the old country—to Poland—and be a field marshal."

"I think," said Herman, "I'd rather stay here and be Marshall Field."

Will Rogers Picks A Story For This Spot

THERE was some oil folks in a Kansas town that invited a famous singer out to their house over Sunday. They had all heard her sing at the opera house Saturday night, and they wanted to make a hit with her.

After lunch Mrs. Oil was talking to the singer in the conservatory, and they talked about this and that in a singing way, but the singer found out the lady didn't know so very much about music.

"You know, Mrs. Oil," she said once, "I have a very strange repertoire."

"Yes, I noticed it Saturday night," says Mrs. Oil, "but I think you could wear a different kind of a dress so nobody would ever notice it."

MOVIES

AT THE GRAND

"After The Ball," the Gaumont picture that is being presented by Rex Film, reveals the colossal task of creating nine elaborate settings for one production. This film, coming to the Grand Theatre on Wednesday, is an excellent example of the care taken by a major movie studio to achieve authenticity.

Among others there is the gigantic ballroom, the locale of a brilliant diplomatic function. With its 400 dancers and thousands of lights, this setting required the utmost in modern cinematic art. The scene was photographed from twenty-three different angles, necessitating as many complete setups of cameras and revisions of equipment.

AT THE CLIFTONA

What the poor bootlegger will do, once prohibition is repealed, is one of the amusing problems dealt with by Alison Skipworth, of "Madame Racketeer" fame in her latest comedy, "A Lady's Profession," currently showing at the Cliftona Theatre. Miss Skipworth is co-featured in the film with Roland Young and Sari Maritza.

The plight of the bootlegger who fears he'll have to join the breadline when prohibition ends is dealt with humorously in the picture. A couple of middle-aged titled Britons, with no money, attempt to get hold of the latter by coming to America and opening a speakeasy. Their difficulties in speakeasy operation are not with the law, but with the bootlegger who are trying to get rid of the million-dollar stock before "Congress muscles in on our racket."

Did you ever stop to think
by EDSON R. WAITE

J. W. Hanson, Editor of the New Smyrna, (Florida,) Daily News, says:

"The trouble with the spasmodic advertiser is that he believes that it reaches farther than it actually does. He often has the notion that three or four good ads a year are going to stamp upon the mind of every buyer the fact that he has goods of good quality and at right prices in a way that the impression will never wear off.

"But human minds are not that way; they are easy to divert from one thing to another by an honest and attractive appeal through the medium of newspaper advertising, unless the impression has been made over a period of many years.

"Advertising affects the mind of a buyer in much the same manner as a stream of water on a rock. If the rock had the sense to know, it would realize it the first time a drop of water fell upon it, but it takes millions of years to wear an impression in the rock that will last.

"Spasmodic advertising only moistens the mind; constant advertising from day to day and from year to year wears an impression that lives as long as the impression in the rock."

Flirtations

Some of the Brain Trusters who have been urging Russian trade and Russian recognition on F. D. R. now are smiling at the international scramble to win Soviet favor.

A few months ago, Britain was boycotting the Bolshies, they were getting no credit here, and the Hitlerites were their avowed enemies.

Now it looks like a New Deal for Russia—at least as far as Russia is concerned. When they saw the United States ready to grab Soviet trade, Britain appointed a new ambassador, resumed trade relations. France started commercial treaty negotiations. Holland moved to accord recognition. Even a New York court ruled against Russian Whites who wanted to collect on Russian oil purchased by American companies. Russia is a sovereign state, the Court ruled, and even though unrecognized by the United States has a right to nationalize its oil industry.

The only fly in the Russian ointment has been Roosevelt's slowness in extending recognition. Dyed in the wool recognition opponents in the State Departments are waging an undercover campaign to block this, but getting nowhere.

The inside dope is that recognition will come as soon as F. D. R. gets around to it, possibly at the end of the summer. Meanwhile, however, there is real danger of losing Russian trade to European competitors.

Merry-Go-Round

Lady Perkins used to serve ginger ale paid for out of her own pocket at her Labor Department press conferences . . . But somebody complained that she was using paper cups at government expense. So she has stopped the ginger ale . . . Secretary Hull keeps a red-headed stenographer immediately outside his door on diplomatic days. She holds notebook in hand, pencil poised. As each visiting ambassador steps out, she steps in. Hull dictates a brief memo of the preceding conversation, the red-headed stenog steps out, the next victim steps in . . . Professor Moley's name is still inscribed on a State Department door as "Assistant Secretary of State" though he has moved over to the Justice Department. . . . The betting odds are about 2 to 1 that the name will come down in a month.

I've Often Wondered

By PAT J. KIRWIN

WHO perfected "cellophane" and how it got its name?

Those persons who know classical languages might have easily figured out why this famous product was called "cellophane." And there are probably some, like myself, who could account for "cello" but were unable to figure out "phane." Nevertheless, R. G. Hintermeister, of the Du Pont Cellophane Co., New York, settled the issue the other day when he explained the entire question.

Here is what he had to say;

"Cellophane was discovered by a Swiss chemist, J. E. Brandenberger, who was trying to apply cellulose solution to cotton fabric to obtain brilliant and shiny designs. A great many experiments were made in this line but they were not successful. He then tried to produce a cellulose film, believing that if such a product could be developed it could be applied on the textile materials through sizing or pasting and thus produce a fabric which would remain pliant and flexible and at the same time have the qualities which he sought."

"In trying to produce this cellulose film, the idea of cellophane was born. Since cellophane is made from spruce wood, he chose the word "cello"—meaning from wood — and "phane" from the Greek word "phaneros"—meaning clear (transparent)."

CASH BENEFIT IS NOT SOLE BENEFIT

The cash payments wheat farmers will receive for contracting with their government to reduce the acreage seeded to wheat this fall are not the sole benefits to be derived from the wheat plan.

The payments, while large enough to compensate a farmer for taking part in the plan, are minor advantages of the plan, according to Guy Dowdy, in charge of the Wheat Adjustment plan in Pickaway County.

The larger goal is to obtain an increased price for wheat by reducing acreage in order to bring the supply of wheat in line with the effective demand.

"Parity insurance" is provided by the plan. That is, the plan operates to raise the price of wheat to the point that a bushel buys as much of a product as it bought in the period of 1909 to 1914.

Limited crop insurance is another feature of the plan. If the crop is ruined by insects or disease, or is winterkilled, the amount of the payments remains unchanged, for payments are based on past production.

Farmers also will be permitted to make some use of the land contracted by the government, for the production of products for home consumption or for purposes of soil improvement.

Costs of production and threshing are served on the acres taken from production.

WON ESSAY PRIZE

BOSTON — Actuated by the death of her daughter, killed in an automobile accident, Mrs. Florence Westerhoff, of Scituate, wrote an appeal for safety on the highways and was awarded first prize by the governor's committee on street and highway safety.

THE WHEAT PLAN

Other Advantages of Wheat Plan of Far Greater Importance, Dowdy Says.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED BY GUY DOWDY

1. Question:—What is the first thing a farmer has to do to calculate whether he should join or not?

Answer:—Write down the acres planted in 1929, 1930 and 1931. Also the yield in 1930, 1931 and 1932. These figures are necessary.

2. Question:—If I come in on the wheat plan, on how many bushels will I receive adjustment payments?

Answer:—On 54 per cent of your average production for the base period, 1928-1932. This is your allotment, on which the payments will be made.

3. Question:—If I take part in the wheat plan, how much must I cut my acreage?

Answer:—The exact amount will not be known until August 24, when Secretary Wallace will set the amount. The reduction, however, will not be more than 20 per cent of your average acreage in the three years 1930 through 1932. It may be as little as 10 per cent.

4. uestion:—When will I get my cash payments?

Answer:—For this year's crop, you will get a payment of 20 cents on each bushel of your allotment this fall, and another payment of between 7 and 10 cents a bushel about June 1st, 1934.

5. Question:—What restrictions does the wheat plan place on my sales of the wheat I grow?

Answer:— None. The plan has nothing to do with sales. You can market your wheat when, where, and how you want to.

6. Question:—If I do not sign up for the wheat plan this year, can I come in later?

Answer:—No. This is a three-year plan, and you must sign up now or wait until after the 1935 crop year. You could come in then on any possible future wheat program.

7. Question:—If I had crop failure this year and harvested no wheat, can I take part in the wheat plan and receive payments?

Answer:—Yes, if you planted wheat and natural forces ruined it. Your Allotment is based on past production.

8. Question:—Do I have to fence off the land taken out of production?

Answer:—No. This would not be a sensible requirement. Go ahead with your rotation and get the land in grass ready for next crop.

9. Question:—What benefit does a farmer get that another does not?

Answer:—Those joining will get cash payments on 1933 crop, others will get nothing.

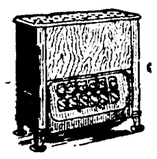
Gas Heat Costs No More

Homes Using the Modern Fuel, Gas, Eliminate Many Incidental Bills

When making home heating plans for next Fall and Winter, many items in addition to actual cost of the fuel should be considered. What incidental expenses will be added to the original cost of the fuel? Will fuel dust, ashes and soot result in heavy cleaning expense in the home? Must the fuel be handled? Must ashes be removed? Will furnace tending be necessary? Will uneven temperatures result in colds and other ailments, causing additional medical expense?

Janitrol, a complete gas-fired heating unit, fits into your present furnace and furnishes clean, healthful, automatic gas heat. Easily installed. Convenient terms.



A Moore's Circulating Gas Heater is ideal for homes without central heating plants; also for heating one or more rooms. See the new attractive models.

Incidental Costs Are Important Items!

Cleaning, fuel handling, removal of ashes, furnace tending and colds involve much time and expense — not to mention discomfort and inconvenience. Their cost in time and money should be taken into consideration when figuring the cost of home heating.

Homes using gas heat reduce cleaning expense to a minimum — they eliminate ashes, smoke and soot — they are bothered by no furnace tending and by no handling of fuel — they enjoy constant, healthful temperature — there is less need to be doctoring colds and kindred ills. And when the cost of clean, healthful gas heat is compared to the cost of other heating methods with their many important incidental expenses, it is found that it really is economical to heat with gas. We invite you to get ALL the facts on heating costs.

NEWS OF HOMES AND HOME FOLKS

VOL. 4. NO. 33. Published by STEVENSON'S Tuesday, August 15, 1933.

Official information relative to the workings of the N.R.A. seems to be hard to get. And for that reason furniture men generally were misinformed about the processing tax on matresses. Word was passed around to us that the tax would amount to something like $2.21 for each 50-lb felt mattress. We passed this information out to the readers of RTT in good faith. Word now comes to us that a readjustment has been made and that the tax will not amount to as much as 25 cents per mattress. We're sorry that we misinformed you, but we had the wrong dope on the matter. At any rate, it's a mighty good time to purchase new mattresses for prices are not going to go lower, but higher.

Sometime ago, we placed an Estate Heatrola in the home of a Roundtown resident. A brother of the owner, finding that the Heatrola was so satisfactory—heating the floor 'neverything has us deliver one to his home. And now we are informed that a third member of this family are considering the purchase of an Estate. It is usually easy to sell an article in a family, but unless that article proves entirely satisfactory, it's another matter when it comes to selling the second one. So, we're rather convinced that this family is not disappointed in the results obtained from their Heatrola purchases.

And speaking of Heatrolas, right now is the best time to place your order for one. Our prices are still based on the lowest list in Heatrola history, in spite of the fact that a new and higher one is now in effect. Besides, we present you with FREE COAL if you order your heater NOW. And what use is a coal heater without coal? Savings from $6.25 to $15.00 may be had by ordering NOW.

If you notice the youthful appearance of some of the housewives of this community, it might be because of the SELLERS kitchen cabinets that were recently installed in their homes.
